

Frederick J. Meyers, M.D., M.A.C.P.

Philosophy of Care

As of 2016 Dr. Meyers was asked to lead and integrate precision medicine across all of the colleges and schools at UC Davis and the communities it serves. He has developed a network among the UCs, the state, and other partners, making the UC Davis Center for Precision Medicine and Data Sciences a leader in precision medicine. Finding precise, targeted and individualized cures for cancer and all disease, and achieving population health, is his enduring passion.

Clinical Interests

Dr. Meyers has a long-standing interest in cancer biology, clinical trials, and palliative care with a focus on advanced and metastatic malignancies. He was part of the leadership team that achieved the National Cancer Institute designation of a Comprehensive Cancer Center for UC Davis Health. He is a Distinguished Professor of Internal Medicine and his service to the University has included 12 years as Chair of the Department of Internal Medicine followed by 7 years as Executive Associate Dean and Vice Dean of the UC Davis School of Medicine.

Research/Academic Interests

Dr. Meyers has a distinguished record of education and workforce development and is nationally known for leading innovative research career development training programs for physician scientists and pre-and postdoctoral fellows. He has served as Director of Research Education and Career Development in the UC Davis Clinical and Translational Science Center (CTSC) since its inception and has been the principal investigator of several training grants. His appointment as Associate Director for Education, Training and Career Development for UC Davis' Comprehensive Cancer Center unites the CTSC and Cancer Center research education efforts. In sum, he is a very well-respected internist, oncologist, an expert in precision medicine, and an academician with outstanding records of mentoring and of representing the UC Davis School of Medicine at the national level, publishing frequently on clinical effectiveness research topics.
